PRIVATE LOAN DISCLOSURE

Private financing programs are unsecured educational loans made by private financial institutions such as banks or credit unions. These are loans that must be repaid with interest.

- Interest rates, origination and repayment fees for these loan programs are based on the credit-worthiness of the borrower and/or co-borrower.
- Interest rates will vary on a monthly or quarterly basis and may not have a maximum rate.
- Repayment generally begins immediately after full disbursement.
- Some lenders may defer (postpone) repayment during periods of at least half-time enrollment and economic hardship; however, interest will accrue on the loan from the date it is disbursed.
- Rules for repayment and deferment vary from lender to lender. Check with your lender for more information.
